Explanation of Marks.

† prefixed to a word, denoteth it to be old, obsolete, or little used.

|| prefixed to a word, denoteth it to be bad, or used only by writers of an inferior class.

* before a word, shews it to be of Greek extraction.

‡ prefixed to a word, denoteth it to be poetical, or used chiefly by poets.

m. denotes the masculine, f. the feminine, n. the neuter, and c. the common gender.

The doubtful gender is denoted by m. v. f. by m. v. n. by f. v. m. by f. v. n. by n. v. m. by n. v. f. But when f. or n. comes first, the noun is oftenest feminine or oftenest neuter.

— over a vowel, sheweth that syllable to be long.

◡ over a vowel, denoteth that syllable to be short.

Here the following rules are observed.

1. The diphthongs æ, œ, au, eu, ei, being all long, are not marked.

2. A vowel before two consonants, or before x, z, j, is long, and therefore not marked.

3. The penult of arum, orum, the genitives plural of the first and second declensions, being always long, is not marked.

4. The penult of are, ire, the infinitives of the first and fourth conjugations, is long, and not marked.

5. A vowel before another vowel, or before h followed by a vowel, is short in Latin words, and not marked.

6. The vowel of a doubtful syllable, that is, of a syllable which is sometimes long and sometimes short, is not marked; as y in Būtyrum.

7. Final syllables are not marked, the true reading not depending on the quantity of these.

All syllables not falling under any of these rules, or excepted from them, are marked.

By the rules hitherto delivered the gender of any noun might be determined, were it not that such is the genius of the Latin language, that nouns of a certain signification, or of some other particular quality, whatever be their termination or declension, are to be esteemed masculine, and others feminine or neuter. Hence another set of rules becomes necessary.

S E C T I O N II.

Rules of gender, founded on the signification or some other quality of nouns, commonly called GENERAL RULES, as extending to nouns of every declension, and of all terminations.

THE general and special rules, with respect to one another, may be considered in two different views, viz.

1. The general rules may be considered as the principal or primary ones, and the special rules as supplimental to them: That is, the general rules are to be consulted for the gender of a noun in the first place; and if they solve the case in question, you rest satisfied: but if they fail to determine the gender of the noun proposed, you then have recourse to the special rules, which which now take place, and supply the defect of the general ones. Hence, in grammatical tracts, the general rules are commonly placed in the front, and have the special rules subjoined to them.

2. The general rules may be considered as so many exceptions from the special ones. Thus, a noun in a of the first declension is feminine by the special rule; but if such a noun denote a male, then, by the general rule, it is excepted, and is masculine. On the other hand, if the noun in a denote a female, or be the name of a town, country, or tree, it is not excepted, but continues feminine, by the joint authority both of the special and general rules.

Hence it is obvious, that the general and special rules will sometimes concur in assigning the same gender to a noun, and sometimes they will clash or disagree; in which case the general rule is properly exceptive, and always takes place.

It is a matter of no great importance whether these two kinds of rules be considered in the first or second view; but it seems to be a better method, at least easier for the learner, to study the special rules in the first place, and afterwards the general ones, and that on account of the many references from the latter to the former; and this is the reason of the order in which they are here delivered.

R U L E I.

Nouns denoting males are masculine.

To this rule belong,

1. Names of males; whether proper; as, Æneas, æ. m. a man's name; Būcēphālus, i. m. the name of a horse; Hylax, actis. m. the name of a dog: Or appellative; as, Frāter, tris. m. a brother; Ēquus, i. m. a horse; Taurus, i. m. a bull.
2. Gentiles; as Perſa, æ. m. a Persian; Tros, ois. m. a Trojan.
3. Names of spirits and heathen gods; as Sātānas, æ. m. Satan; Mars, tis. m. the god of war.

R U L E II.

Nouns denoting females are feminine.

To this rule belong,

1. Names of females; whether proper; as, Hělēna, æ. f. a woman's name; Thoe, es. f. the name of a mare; Lŷcisca, æ. f. the name of a bitch: Or appellative; as, Sōror, ōris. f. a sister; Ēqua, æ. f. a mare; Vacca, æ. f. a cow.
2. Gentiles; as, Troas, ādis. f. a Trojan woman; Sicēlis, īdis. f. a woman of Sicily.

3. Names

3. Names of heathen goddesses; as, Vēnus, ěris. f. the goddess of love.

R U L E III.

Nouns denoting either sex are of the common gender.

E X A M P L E S.

Pārens, tis. c. a parent.

Infans, tis c. a child.

Cīvis, is. c. a citizen.

Cānis, is. c. a dog or bitch.

Note 1. To this rule belong such nouns only as are used in the masculine gender to signify males, and in the feminine to signify females. For there are a great many nouns which denote either sex, and yet are always masculine, or admit only of an adjective masculine; as, Hōmo, ĩnis. m. a man or woman; Fur, ūris. m. a thief; Advēna, æ. m. a stranger; Latro, ōnis. m. a robber; Caupo, ōnis. m. an innkeeper; Pugil, ĩlis. m. a champion; Exul, ūlis. m. a banished person; Præses, ĩdis. m. a president; Artífex, ĩcis. m. an artist; ōpífex, ĩcis. m. a maker, &c.

Note 2. Names of brute animals denoting either sex take generally the gender of their termination; as, Ĕlēphantus, i. m. an elephant; Passer, ěris. m. a sparrow; Salmo, ōnis. m. a salmon; Vulpes, is. f. a fox; Āquĭla, æ. f. an eagle; Bālæna, æ. f. a whale. The sex is pointed out by adding the word mas or fœmina; as, Liv. xxviii. 11. Agnus mas idemque fœmina natus erat.

Note 3. The extent of this rule will appear to be but small, from the following verses, in which the nouns of the common gender are all comprehended.

Conjux, atque pārens, infans, patruēlis, et hæres,
Affĭnis, vindex, jūdex, dux, miles, et hostis,
Augur, et antistes, jūvĕnis, convĭva, sācerdos,
Mūnĭqueps, vātes, ādolescens, cīvis, et auctōr,
Custos, nĕmo, cōmes, testis, sus, hœsque cānisque,
Interpresque, cliens, princeps, præs, martyr, et obfēs.

Aprĭlis, is. m. the month April. Tĭbĕris, is. m. the river Tiber.

Āquĭlo, ōnis. m. the north wind. Othrys, yos. m. a hill in Thessaly.

Note 1. The names of all the months, and many of the names of winds, are properly adjectives, and used in the masculine, fculine, because the suppressed substantive mensis or ventus is of that gender, according to Rule X. following.

Note 2. A great many names both of rivers and mountains, especially those in a, e, um, keep the gender of their termination; as, Matrōna, æ. f. the river Marne in France; Lēthe, es. f. Styx, ŷgis. f. rivers in hell; Plemmŷrium, i. n. a river in Sicily; Ætna, æ. f. a mountain in Sicily; Rhōdōpe, es. f. a mountain in Thrace; Sōraċte, is. n. a hill in Italy; Pēlion, i. n. a hill in Thessaly.

Argo, us. f. the ship Argo.

Cōrinthus, i. f. the city Corinth.

Æneis, eidos. f. Virgil's Æneid.

Pōmus, i. f. an apple-tree.

Note. The names of countries and towns comprehended in this rule, are chiefly those in us and os of the second-declension, and those in n of the third; as, Chersōnēsus, i. f. the name of a country; Ēpirus, i. m. the name of a kingdom; Cyprus, i. f. the island Cyprus; Gnoŷsus, i. f. a town in Crete; Cnīdus, i. f. a city in Caria; Sāmos, i. f. the island Samos; Pŷlos, i. f. the city Pylos; Trōezen, ōnis. f. Elenīn, īnis. f. Lācŷdæmon, ōnis. f. names of cities.

Most of the other names of towns and countries retain the gender of their termination; as, Agrāgas, antis. m. Sulmo, ōnis. m. names of towns; Brītanīa, æ. f. the isle of Britain; Persis, īdis. f. the kingdom of Persia; Rōma, æ. f. Carthāgo, īnis. f. the cities Rome and Carthage; Londīnum, i. n. the city London; Albion, i. n. the island Albion or Great Britain; īlion, i. n. the city Troy; Præneste, is. n. Tībur, ūris. n. cities in Italy. r. Names of countries and towns.

1. Names of towns in us of the third declension are generally masculine; as, Hydrus, untis. m. Pessīnus, untis. m. Sēlinus, untis. m.

The three following names of towns are also masculine; viz. Cānōpus, i. m. Tūnes, ētis. m. Tecmon, ōnis. m. To which add, Pontus, i. m. the name of a kingdom; Sālon, ōnis. m. the name of a small island.

2. Argos, Tēder, Gādir, names of towns, are neuter. The last two occur only in the nom. or acc. sing. Argos has only the nom. acc. and abl. sing.; but in the plural is complete, and masculine; thus, Argi, orum. m. a famous city of Achaia in Peloponnesus.

4. Names of trees in um or on are neuter; as, Buxum, i. n. the bush or box tree; Līgustrum, i. n. privet; Gossīpion, i. n. the cotton-tree.

Excep. Uncia, æ. f. an ounce or one 12th part.

R U L E VIII.

Letters, words, or clauses, used nominally, or by way of substantive nouns, are neuter.

E X A M P L E S.

1. Letters; as, a parvum, a little a; i longum, a long i.

2. Words; as, Scire tuum nihil est, Thy knowledge is nothing; Cras istud, that to-morrow; Illud āmor est verbum, that āmor is a verb; Lux est mōnōsyllābum, Lux is monosyllabical, i. e. a word of one syllable.

3. Clauses; as, Invēnīre vērītātem est jūcundum, To discover truth is pleasant; Mōri pro patria est dulce, To die for one's country is sweet.

R U L E IX.

Appellatives, or general words, often give gender to particulars of their own tribe.

E X A M P L E S.

1. Būbo, though generally masculine, as ending in o, yet sometimes is used in the feminine, because the appellative āvis or vōlucris is femine. Thus, Virg. Æn. 4. 452. Sōla būbo, the solitary owl, i. e. Sōla āvis būbo, the solitary bird the owl. In like manner Iāder, though commonly masculine, is sometimes used in the neuter, because the general word fūmen is neut. Lucan/

iv. 405. Těpŭdum Iāder, the warm Iader, i. e. Těpŭdum flūmen Iāder, the warm river Iader.

2. From this rule appears the reason why the names of months, winds, rivers, and mountains, are masculine; namely, because the appellatives mensis, ventus, flūvius, and mons are masculine.

3. In like manner, the names of countries, towns, trees, ships, and poems, are feminine; because the general words rēgio, urbs, arbor, nāvis, fābŭla, are feminine.

4. The names of some jewels, herbs, and plants too are feminine, for no other reason but because the appellatives gemma, herba, planta are feminine.

5. The name of letters are also often feminine, because the general word lītēra is feminine.

6. The names of males and females probably too derive their gender from the general words mas, fēmīna, vir, mŭlier, deus, dea, spirītus, nympha, fŭria, or the like.

R U L E X.

Adjectives used substantively take the gender of the suppressed substantive.

E X A M P L E S.

1. Mōlāris, is. m. (sup. lapis). a millstone. ōriens, tis. m. (sup. sol). the rising sun, the east. Torrens, tis. m. (sup. fluvius). a stream, a land flood.

2. Patria, æ. f. (sup. terra). one's native country. Rēgia, æ. f. (sup. domus). a palace.

3. Triste, is. n. (sup. negotium). a sad thing.

R U L E XI.

Adjectives have all the three genders.

Note 1. Some adjectives have but one termination; as, fēlix, happy; hēbes, dull; vētus, old. Some have two; as, mollis, e. soft; dūrior, us. harder. And some have three; as, albus, a, um. white; ācer, cris, cre. sharp.

Note 2. Some adjectives occur mostly in the masculine, some mostly in the feminine, and some mostly in the neuter. Others again are found in the common gender, and seldom or never in the neuter.

C H A P II.

Of the PRETERITES and SUPINES of VERBS.I. GENERAL RULES ; or, Rules applicable to verbs of all conjugations.

R U L E I.

Compound verbs form the preterite and supine like the simple ; as,

Rēdāmo, rēdāmāvi, rēdāmātum, to love again, like āmo, āmāvi, amātum, to love.

There are a great many exceptions from this rule, which will be taken notice of, as they occur, in the respective conjugations to which the verbs belong.

R U L E II.

When simple verbs redouble the preterite, the compounds drop the first syllable ; as,

Pello, pēpūli, to drive away, to beat back ; Repello, rēpūli, and not rēpēpūli, to drive back, to repel.

E X C E P T I O N S.

Some few compounds retain that syllable, viz.

1. Præcurro, præcūcurri, to run before ; — from curro, to run.
2. Rēpungo, rēpūpūgi, to prick again ; — from pungo, to prick.
3. The compounds of do, sto, disco, and posco ; as,

Addo, addīdi, to add.

Asto, astīti, to stand by.

Edisco, edīdīci, to learn by heart.

Dēposco, dēpōposci, to demand.

R U L E III.

When a compound is formed from the simple by changing a into i, the supine has e ; as,

Perfīcio,

Perficio, perfēci, perfectum, to perfect; — from Facio, fēci, factum, to make.

EXCEPTIONS.

1. Displīceo, displīcui, displīcitum, to displease; — from Plāceo, plācui, plācītum, to please.
2. Verbs in do and go; as,
Rēcīdo, rēcīdi, rēcāsum, to fall back; — from Cādo, cēcīdi, cāsum, to fall.
Ādīgo, ādēgi, aētum, to drive in; — from Āgo, ēgi, aētum, to do or drive.
3. The compounds of hābeo, sāpio, sālio, and stātuo; as,
Prohībeo, prohībui, prohībītum, to forbid; — from Hābeo, hābui, hābītum, to have.
Dēsīpio, dēsīpui, † dēsīpītum, to play the fool; — from Sāpio, sāpui, † sāpītum, to be wise.
Insīlio, insīlui, & ii, insultum, to leap upon; — from Sālio, sālui, & ii, saltum, to leap.
Instītuo, instītui, instītūtum, to appoint; — from Stātuo, stātui, stātūtum, to resolve.

R U L E IV.

Verbs having a in the present retain a in the supine; as,

Cāpio, cēpi, captum, to take. Fallo, fēfelli, falsum, to deceive.

R U L E V.

Verbs having no preterite, always want the supine; as, polleo, glisco, vergo, fērio. Except Cicio, — cītum, to rouse.

R U L E VI.

The present of the indicative and the present of the infinitive have always the same initial letters or syllables, and differ only in the final part or termination; as,

Ambūlo, ambūlāvi, ambūlātum, ambūlāre, to walk. Tollo, sustūli, sublātum, tollēre, to lift up.

II. SPECIAL RULES, or such as are restricted to verbs of a particular conjugation.

FIRST CONJUGATION.

Verbs of the first conjugation form the preterite in āvi, and the supine in ātum; as, āmo, āmāvi, āmātum, to love.

EXCEPTIONS.

N O T E S.

1. Eo and all its compounds have the penult of the ſupine ſhort, except ambio, which alone changes e into i; thus, Ambio, īvi, ĩtum, to go about, to court, to careſs. Hence the participle ambitus, a, um. has the penult long; but the ſubſtantive ambitus, us. m. makes that ſyllable ſhort.

2. The compounds of farcio change a into e; as, Confercio, conferfi, confertum, to fill, ſtuff, or cram. But we ſay effercio or effarcio, infercio or infarcio.

rui, āpertum, to open, to diſcover; and Ōpērio, ōpērui, ōpertum,

4. The compounds of † pĕrio are likewise two, viz. Compĕrio, compĕri, compertum, to find by trial, to know for certain; and Rĕpĕrio, rĕpĕri, rĕpertum, to find by chance, to discover.

But the supines absultum, circumsultum, prōsultum, subsultum, are scarcely in use.

7. Desiderative or meditative verbs want the preterite, and consequently the supine; as, Cœnâtŭrio, — ire. to desire to sup; Scriptŭrio, — ire. to have an itch for writing. Except Ēsŭrio, Ēsŭrivi, Ēsŭritum, to be hungry, Nuptŭrio, nuptŭrivi, nuptŭritum, to desire to be married; Partŭrio, partŭrivi, partŭritum, to travail in birth. But the supines of the last two are scarcely in use.

Of the Preterites of Deponent and Common Verbs.

THE preterite of a deponent or common verb is made up of the participle perfect formed from the imaginary supine of the active voice supposed, and the verb sum, fui. Thus, in the first conjugation, the deponent verb Lætor, lætātus sum v. fui, to be glad, is formed from the supposed verb Læto, lætāvi, lætātum, viz. the preterite lætātus sum v. fui, is made up of lætatus, the participle perfect, formed from the imaginary supine lætatum, and the verb sum v. fui. In the second conjugation Vĕrior, vĕritus sum v. fui, to reverence, to fear, comes regularly from the supposed Vĕreo, vĕrui, vĕritum. In the third, Fungor, fūctus sum v. fui, to discharge an office or duty, is formed from the supposed Fungo, funxi, functum. In the fourth, Pōtior, pōtītus sum v. fui, to get, to enjoy, to master or conquer, comes from the supposed Pōtio, pōtīvi, pōtītum.

C H A P. III.

Of the QUANTITY of SYLLABLES.

THE Latin letters are twenty-five, whereof six, viz. a, e, i, o, u, y, are vowels; the other nineteen are consonants. But k, y, and z, are found only in words of Greek extraction.

Of the consonants, two, viz. x and z, are called double; the remaining seventeen are called single.

The single consonants are divided into mutes and semi-vowels.

The mutes are nine, viz. b, c, d, g, j, k, p, q, t; the semi-vowels are eight, namely, f, h, l, m, n, r, s, v; and four of these, viz. l, m, n, r, are called liquids.

In the rules ascertaining the quantity of syllables h is not esteemed a letter, but purely a mark of aspiration.

Syllables are divided into short, marked thus (◡); long, marked thus (—); and common or doubtful, which are sometimes short, sometimes long, and these have no mark.

A syllable is called first, middle, or final, according as it stands in the beginning, in the middle, or in the end of a word.

The syllable proceeding the last or final syllable is called the penult, and the syllable preceding the penult gets the name of the antepenult.

Chap. III. Of the quantity of syllables.

The quantity of a syllable is either natural, arising from the nature of the vowel, as re in rēfūto short, de in dēpello long; or the quantity of a syllable is accidental, which departs from the natural, on account of some adventitious cause; as re in rēstiti is long, because followed by two consonants; and de in dēamo is short, because followed by a vowel.

The quantity of a syllable is known either by rule or by authority, that is, by examples brought from the poets; and to this last method we have recourse when the rules fail, which are not so complete as to determine the quantity of every syllable in all words.

The rules are either general, extending to any syllable; or special, restricted to some certain syllable.

GENERAL RULES.

1. A vowel before a vowel in Latin words is short.

As, Dēus creāvit omnia. Also, mīhi, nīhil; for h is not esteemed a letter.

2. From the above rule there are several exceptions; namely.

1. Fi in the verb Fio is long, when r is not in the word; as, Fīebam, Fīam; but short when r is in the word; as, Fīerem, Fīeri.

2. The genitive and dative singular of the fifth declension make e in the penult long, when e has i both before and after it; as, diēi, speciēi.

3. The penult of the genitive singular in ius is long in prose, but common in verse; as, unius, illius. But the penult of the genitive alius is always long, and of alterius always short.

4. O in ohe is common.

5. The penult in Pompēi, Cāi, and the like vocatives, is long.

6. Di in Diana is common.

7. The first in āer, diūs, and ēheu is long; as also the penult in aulāi, terrāi, pictāi, and the like old genitives of the first declension.

3. The quantity of a vowel before a vowel in Greek words is uncertain, being short in some words and long in others.

Short.

Short, as, Danæ, idæa, Sophiā, Simōis, Hÿades.

Long, as, Lycæon, Cytheræa, Sperchîus, Alchelōus, Enÿo.

4. A vowel before two consonants, whereof one or both are in the same word, is long by position.

As, āma, pēdidit, ērabāt, sīlva, īn māgna.

A vowel too is long by position, when it is followed by a double consonant in the same word; as, āxis, gāza.

Grammarians generally esteem j a double consonant, when placed betwixt two vowels; as, mājor, rējicio. But this does not take place in the compounds of jugum; as, bījugus, quadrījugus, where i is short.

If a word end in a short vowel, and the next word begin with two consonants, the final vowel is sometimes, though rarely, made long by position; as,

Virg. Ferte citi flammæ, date telâ, scandite muros.

5. If a vowel naturally short end a syllable, and be followed by a mute, and the mute by a liquid, both in the next syllable, the short vowel is rendered common in verse, but continues short in prose.

As, a in agris, y in Cyclopes, e in pharetra, u in volucris, o in Progne.

But if the vowel be naturally long, it continues so, and cannot be made short; as, ācris, mātris, sālūbris, ambulācrum.

6. A syllable formed by contracting two or more into one is naturally long.

As, cōgo for coago, tibīcen for tibiicen, īt for iit, sīs for si vis, sōdes for si audes, nōlo for non volo, mālo for magis volo.

7. A diphthong, both in Greek and Latin words, is naturally long.

As, Æncas, Eubœa, Cæsar, fœnus, aurum, heus, omneis.

E X C E P T I O N.

The Latin preposition præ before a vowel in compound words is generally short, as, præce, præstus.

Of the Crements of Nouns.

If a noun in any oblique case exceed the nominative in number of syllables, it is then said to increase, or to have a crement.

If the genitive exceed the nominative by one syllable, the penult of the genitive is the crement, and runs through all the other cases.

Thus

Thus from the nominative rex, the ccrement is re in regis, regi, regem, rege, reges, regum; and regibus in the dative and ablative plural has two ccrements, the first re, the second gi. The final syllable is never esteemed a ccrement.

In like manner, sermo gives mo for the first ccrement in all the oblique cases, and ni is the second ccrement in the dative and ablative plural.

Iter, sapellēx, also anceps, and the other compounds of caput in ps, give two ccrements in the genitive singular, and three in the dative and ablative plural.

Of ccrements that take rise in the genitive singular, or in the singular number.

Ccrements of the 1st, 4th, and 5th declensions.

21. Nouns of the 1st, 4th, and 5th declensions, have no ccrement in the singular number, unless when a vowel follows a vowel.

Thus, in the 1st, Aulāi, piētāi; in the 4th, Anñis, anñi; in the 5th, Rēi, speciēi: and the respective quantity of these is assigned in Rule 1. and 2.

22. Ccrements of the second declension are short.

Long: as, Musārum, rērum, dominōrum. Short; as, Ars, artibus; Artus, artūbus.

But būbus or bōbus is long, as being contracted from bovibus.

Of the Cements of Verbs.

If any part of a verb exceed the second person singular of the present of the indicative active in number of syllables, it is then said to increase, or to have a crement.

If any part of a verb exceed the said second person by one syllable, the penult is the crement; as, ſic in ſetis, and ma in amamus. The final syllable is never esteemed a crement.

If any part of a verb exceed the said second person by two, three, three, or four syllables, there will be so many different cements. Thus, amabamus has two cements, ma the first, and ba the second. Again amaverimus has three cements, ma the first, ve the second, and ri the third. And audiebami has four cements, namely di, e, ba, mi.

In deponent verbs, the active voice and second person singular must be supposed. Thus, in the verb Conor, we suppose the second person to be conas, and then conatur has one cement, viz. na; and conabatur has two, namely na, ba; again, conaremini has three, viz. na, re, mi.

A.

40. Cements in a are always long.

As, Stābam, amārem, legebāmus, audiebāmini, bibāmus, venerāmus.

E X C E P T I O N S.

The first cement in a of the verb Do, and of its compounds in the first conjugation, is short; as, dāmus, dābunt, dāre; also circundāmus, venundābo.

But a in any other cement of Do, or of its compounds of the first conjugation, is long; as, dābāmus, dederātis, circunderamus.

And a in the first cement of the compounds of Do in the third conjugation, is long; as, Vendāmus, abdātis.

41. Cements in e are ever long.

As, Amēmus, amarēmus, amavissētis; Docēbam, docērem; Legēbat, legērunt; Audiēmus, audivēre, &c.

E X C E P T I O N S.

1. E before r is short in the first cement in any present or imperfect of the third conjugation; as, Legēris or legēre, in the present of the indicative passive; legēre in the infinite active, and imperative passive; legērem and legērer in the imperfect of the subjunctive active and passive.

But rēris and rēre, both in the third, and in all the other conjugations, is long; as, Legerēris, legerēre; Amarēris, amarēre; Docerēris, docerēre, &c.

Though therefore, in the present and preterite of the fourth conjugation, the word be sometimes the same as to spelling, yet they are distinguished by their quantity, the penult of the word being long in the present; as, Venīmus, reperīmus; but short in the preterite, viz. Venīmus, reperīmus.

63. The last syllable of a verse is long or short as the poet pleases.

Of Latin Verse.

A verse is composed of two or more feet, and a foot is made up of two or more syllables.

The feet are various and numerous, but I shall here take notice only of the dactyl and spondee.

A dactyl consists of one long syllable followed by two short ones; as, Cārmīnā. A spondee is made up of two long syllables; as, ōmnēs.

An hexameter or herioc verse, used by Virgil, and by Ovid in his Metamorph. consists of six feet, the first four being a mixture of dactyls and spondees, at the poets pleasure, the fifth foot is a dactyl, and the sixth a spondee.

To measure or scan a verse is to divide or resolve it into the feet of which it is composed; as,

Tityre, tu patulæ recubans sub tegmine fagi, is resolved into feet as follow.

1.	2.	3.	4.	5.	6.
dactyl	dactyl	dactyl	spondee	dactyl	spondee
Tītŷrē	tū pātū	læ rēcū	bāns sūb	tēgmīnē	fāgī.

If any word end with a vowel or diphthong, or with m after a vowel, and the next word begin with a vowel or diphthong, the final vowel or diphthong, or final m with the vowel before it, are dashed or rejected in scanning the verse; as,

Virg. Quidve moror, si omnes uno ordine habetis Achivos.
Ovid. Leniter ex merito quicquid patiare ferendum est.

Resolved into feet thus :

Quīdvē mōrōr, s' ōmnēs ūn' ōrdīn' hābētīs Āchīvōs.
Lēnītēr ēx mērītō quīcquīd pātīārē fērēnd' ēst.

The poets sometimes, on grave, solemn, or mournful subjects, make the fifth foot a spondee; as,

Virg. Cārā Dēūm sōbōlēs, māgnūm Jōvīs īncrēmētūm.

C H A P. IV.

Of the KALENDS, NONES, and IDES.

THE Romans had three remarkable days in each month, from which all the rest were denominated and computed, viz. the KALENDS or CALENDS, the NONES, and IDES. In

In every month the first day was called kalendæ. In the months March, May, July, and October, the seventh day was called nonæ, and the fifteenth idus. But in all the other months of the year the fifth day was called nonæ, and the thirteenth idus.

In reckoning, they went backward, in this manner. The day preceding the kalends, nones, or ides, was called pridie kalendas, or pridie calendarum, pridie nonas or nonarum, pridie idus or iduum. The day before this was called tertio kalendas, nonas, idus, i. e. tertio die ante kalendas, nonas, idus, reckoning inclusively : or it was expressed thus, tertio calendarum, nonarum, iduum, i. e. tertio die calendarum.

Thus January 1st was called kalendæ Januarii, or, using the month's name adjectively, kalendæ Januariæ. The last of December was called pridie kalendas or calendarum Januarii, or adjectively, pridie kalendas Januarias. December 30th was tertio kalendas Januarii or Januarias. December 29th was quarto kalendas Januarias; and so backward to December 14th, which was decimo nono kalendas Januarias. The 13th was idus Decembris, the 12th was pridie idus or iduum Decembris, the 11th was tertio idus Decembris; and so on to the fifth, which was nonæ Decembris. The fourth was pridie nonas or nonarum Decembris, the 3d was tertio nonas or nonarum Decembris, the 2d was quarto nonas Decembris, and the 1st was kalendæ Decembris. The last of November was pridie kalendas Decembris or Decembrias, &c. Here observe, that the names of all the months are used either substantively or adjectively, except Aprilis, which is used substantively only.

In leap-year, which is every fourth year, February hath 29 days, and both the 24th and 25th are called the sixth of the kalends of March : and hence this year is called bissextilis.

The following verses shew the number of days in each month, and contain a summary of what has been said. The table represents the manner of computation : in which observe that the numbers refer to the words below them.

Junius, Aprilis, Septemque, Novemque tricenos;
Unum plus reliqui; Februus tenet octo viginti;
At si bissextus fuerit, superadditur unus.
Tu primam mensis lucem dic esse kalendas,
Sex Maius nonas, October, Julius et Mars,
Quatuor at reliqui: dabit idus quilibet octo.
Omnes post idus luces dic esse kalendas,
Nomen sortiri debent a mense sequenti.

Romulus begun his months always upon the first day of the new moon, and on this day one of the inferior priests used to assemble the people in the Capitol, and call over as many days as there were between that and the nones : and so from the old verb calo, derived from the Greek καλῶ to call, the first day of the month had the name of kalendæ. But this custom continued only till the year of Rome 450, when Cn. Flavius, the curule ædile, ordered the fasti or kalendar to be fixed up in public places, that every body might know the times, and the return of the festivals.

The nones were so called, because, reckoning inclusively, there are nine days from them to the ides.

The ides fell near about the middle of the month ; and the word is derived from iduate, an obsolete verb, borrowed from the Etrurian language, which signifies to divide.

The Greeks had no kalends in their way of reckoning ; and hence the Latin proverb ad kalendas Græcas, is used to signify a time that never will happen ; particularly Augustus, when speaking of desperate debtors, used, in a facetious manner, to say, ad kalendas Græcas soluturos, as we learn from Sueton. Aug. cap. 87.
